Complete educational module and moulding machine for short-term training and re-training in plastic injection moulding technology

Summary

The unique electrically driven injection moulding machine developed by a Hungarian small enterprise, which can be put into operation at any place, provides production with low operational cost. The company is looking for manufacturing, technical co-operation and services- commercial agency agreement opportunities with universities, secondary and higher educational institutions and production companies for further growth.

Reference BOHU20140407001

Details

Description

The novelty and innovative nature of the plastic injection moulding machine developed by a Hungarian small enterprise is the fact that it can be brought into operation anywhere, and for being solely electrically driven and for involving an inner cooling system, it works with a low level of operational cost. This makes it possible to be placed in classrooms of secondary- and higher education, and in laboratories and training rooms of corporations. The operational costs of the equipment can be kept on a low level, especially the cost of maintenance, the replacement of tools and switching to different working methods. These altogether provide the minimisation of training's material costs. In order to provide the equipment of the moulding machine, the educational project includes the 3D design unit and the 3D CAD/CAM (Computer-Aided Design/Computer-Aided Manufacturing) milling machine. The efficient training programme reduces the period of necessary training process besides providing the transparency of the production process by making the learning process easier from the production side of the product/ machine. Having the proper previous qualifications, handlers can be trained for operating moulding machines in three months with the frames of this educational programme. Furthermore, the training project provides a comprehensive view to the whole production process which has been adjusted to those placing the orders; with special regard to toolmaking in higher education. This makes it possible to immediately react to market demands in the sequence of idea-designing-toolmaking-injection moulding-finished goods. So far, such an efficient short-term training method has been unknown for educational institutions or production companies which would help the acquisition of injection moulding technology and toolmaking within a few months. However, business processes require the quick reaction to market demands from the provision of handlers' qualified staff to the delivery of finished goods.

The enterprise is eager to find partners for manufacturing, technical co-operation and service, commercial agency agreement and is paying special attention to universities, secondary and higher educational institutions and production companies.
